Schneider Left Top Job

You can hardly blame John Schneider for not wanting to return to the second quarter of summer school at the University of Maine. His senior season as the right defensive end of the Black Bears' defense was one of the best the team had seen in years. But this year, with the team struggling to win even a single game, Schneider is looking forward to spending more time on the sidelines as a spectator. He has already made up his mind not to return to the university next year in order to focus on his football career.

Reid Fisherman

Fisherman is known as "Fish" by his teammates since his family name is used by all his teammates. He has been a key player on Fisherman's team, leading them to victory in several important matches. Fisherman has been known for his ability to read the opposing team's formations and make quick decisions on the field.

The TAURUS Rag

The TAURUS Rag is the student newspaper of the University of Maine. It is written and edited by students, and covers a wide range of topics, from sports to campus news.

Before each trip, the six played an intramural softball game with the Iota—a team of summer school football players. Holes is the team catcher, wide receiver Crabtree is the quarterback, and Fish is the center. Fish is a very good player, and his presence on the team has helped the Iota to many victories.
