Strock-Scouts:
Coincidence or ...

By HAROLD PEARSON

Shortly before kickoff last Saturday at Ohio University’s Peden Stadium, the press box loudspeaker crackled, shrieked and then announced, “Gentlemen, today we have in attendance scouts from the Buffalo Bills, Baltimore Colts and St. Louis Cardinals.”

It had already been announced that starting at quarterback for Virginia Tech, the Bobcats’ Homecoming position, would be Don Strock.

Could it have been coincidence that the Bills, Colts and Cards need a quarterback and Strock is the national leader in passing (20.2 completions per game) and total offense (301.8 yards per game)?
