Omicon Delta Kappa
Frank Loria Award
 Goes To Carpenito

Omicon Delta Kappa has established a Frank L. Loria award to honor one every year.

It's called the "Frank L. Loria Achievement Award" (1946-67) and it's for excellence in any field.

The award was established in 1946 and is open to all students.

In addition to his playing career,

Loria was also very active in the community.

Carpenito, an engineering major in the college's mechanical engineering department, won the award for his contributions in the field of mechanical engineering.

The award is presented annually to the student who demonstrates the highest level of achievement in the field of mechanical engineering.

Carpenito has been involved in several projects related to mechanical engineering, including the design and development of new technologies for the field.

His contributions have been recognized by his peers and by the university administration.

Carpenito is expected to continue his studies and research in the field of mechanical engineering, and his achievements will undoubtedly continue to bring him recognition and success in the future.
