THE THREE MEETING between Virginia's Don Lawrence and Virginia Tech's Biff Capps, the two stars who are "going to hold a Wall of pride around the state of Virginia" and "who are about to set the tone for college football in the South," is no joke. The game, set for Saturday at 2:30, will be at Lane Stadium.

Lawrence, a 21-year-old star for the University of Virginia, is a 175-pound halfback who has been a key factor in the team's defense as well as in the offense. Capps, a 22-year-old star for Virginia Tech, is a 200-pound fullback who has been a key factor in the team's defense as well as in the offense.

The game is important because it is the first meeting between the two teams in Virginia's history. It is also a key game in the Southern Conference, which Virginia and Virginia Tech are members of.

Which team will win? It's impossible to say. The two teams are evenly matched and both have good players. The game will be a good one to watch!
