Virginia Tech’s 1974 Football Edition will be opened for the eyes of the readers Saturday, probably before a large turnout.

When the Hokies take the field for the spring bash, there will be no fireworks in the skies, no billboards by the roadsides, no TV commercials about explosions. One of the recent years’ football slogans used “Teamwork Orange.”

This year we look more teamwork and less orange. It could be the year of the Maroon Crunch, the team that keeps a low profile, the best position from which to hit an opponent.