Although Arians has been at Tech for three years (he was recruited here by Howard Wood), he only has four quarters of varsity playing experience. However, according to the Tech grading system, he is running first unit now.

But you have to wonder—after the spring—has Arians that kind of potential? Dan Henning, the Tech offensive coordinator, who is supposed to be the person most responsible for Strock's development, refuses to say at this time.

"I'm not going to hang that kind of a hat on Arians or any of our quarterbacks at this time," Henning said. "It wouldn't be fair, Don Strock was a great college quarterback but I can't say I'm remembering my first spring practice with Don. I'd have to say I'm a great deal ahead of him at the comparable time. You have to remember, however, I had Slick."