Keydets Defeat Spiders—At Last

By DENNIS LATTIE
Times Sports Writer

RICHMOND — In spite of some of the most excruciating moments of the season, the University of Virginia bought the services of Leonard Street for the last two weeks. The Keydets had to make a change and that was the end of the line for the team. Street has been a key player in the team's success and has been a consistent performer for the past 20 years.

This was the last time Street played for Virginia Tech. The team was 2-0 last season, but they didn't have the same success as they did this season. Street had 10 points and 11 rebounds when he was with the team last season. He had 10 points in the first half of the game, and the team was behind by 20 points. Street had a total of 16 points for the team.

The Virginia Tech defense was excellent, holding the University of Virginia to 43 points. The team played well together, and they were able to make the most of their opportunities. Street was one of the key players for the team, and he played well in his absence.

The game was played in front of a sold-out crowd, and the Virginia Tech fans were cheering them on. The team played well in the second half, and they were able to get the win. Street had a total of 16 points for the team, and he played well in his absence.

Keydets Defeat Spiders—At Last

No Bell, But Plenty of Action

Tech's Basketball Team (EM) Misses It Up With Wally Walker of Virginia

Duke Theore Use His Arms as an Offensive Weapon While Dancing for Burke