Virginia Tech sports for women will add two more slowly sports to the schedule this season. Recruiting is already underway for the new women's tennis and soccer teams. The tennis team will begin its competitive season on the tennis court of the new of Virginia Tech. The soccer season will begin next spring.

The new sports have been added in response to increasing interest among female students in athletic activities. The addition of tennis and soccer will provide new opportunities for high school girls interested in college sports.

The tennis team will play its first match against Virginia Commonwealth University in February. The soccer team will begin its season in March against George Washington University.

The addition of these sports is part of an overall plan to increase the number of female athletes at Virginia Tech. In recent years, the university has made significant efforts to improve women's sports programs, including the addition of new facilities and the hiring of experienced coaches.

Virginia Tech remains committed to providing a broad range of athletic opportunities for its female students. The university is proud to offer a variety of sports that cater to different interests and abilities, allowing female athletes to pursue their passions and achieve their goals.

Virginia Tech Women's Sports
By Bill Mason